Under executive order of the Changjiang (Yangtse) Shipping Corp., effective 25/11/66, the beginning of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution, all large Yangtse passenger vessels with JIANG and MIN names were immediately renamed in a new DONG FANG HONG (DFH) – “The East is Red” – naming series. Subsequent newly constructed ships were also named in the DFH series which is used as the original basis for this list.

In the Mao period nine large Yangtze river steamers were built. These nine vessels were all capable of a through passage from Shanghai to Chongqing and appear in this list as DFH nos 31 to 38 and no. 52, formerly the V.I.P. steamer JIANG XIA (II).

The construction of new ships for the Yangtse greatly increased during and after the Deng period, including ships of a hitherto unprecedented 5000 gross tons. The latter vessels were known as the DONG FANG HONG 11 class and appear in this list as DFH nos 11 to 30 and JIANG HANS 19 and 20.

Branch allocations for vessels with three digits were DFH 1-- (Chongqing Branch), DFH 2-- (Wuhan Branch), DFH 3-- (Wuhu Branch) and DFH 4-- (Shanghai Branch).

On 1/7/84 a new executive order advised that all DONG FANG HONG vessels were to be renamed with names beginning with JIANG SHEN 江申 (Shanghai Branch) JIANG WU 江芜 (Wuhu Branch), JIANG HAN 江汉 (Wuhan Branch) and JIANG YU 江渝 (Chongqing Branch). These vessels are listed below according to their original DFH number where known. Vessels for which the DFH number is not known, or which were built after 1/7/84, follow at the end.

[The DONG FANG HONG numbers DFH 1 to 10 were used for large pre-existing steamers on the daily Shanghai-Wuhan service and are covered in detail in a separate list of pre-existing steamers. Other known pre-existing vessels such as DFH 61-64 and DFH 402-406 are also covered in the separate list.]

DONG FANG HONG (no number)

757 grt, officially listed as having been built in 1954 by Kiangnan Shipyard, Shanghai as CHIANG HSIA (pingyin JIANG XIA). We believe this vessel is a reconstruction from the wreck of MIN CHU 643/25 sunk in fresh water in 1943 and accordingly. full details are given in the Part 1 list.

1960s JIANG vessel(s) for which DONG FANG HONG number is unknown

JIANG CHU, steamship, 3/60 mentioned in China Reconstructs.

JIANG DONG 江東 1390dw/66 900 pass 14.5k Built by Shanghai Dockyard. Reconstruction?

Launch of an unidentified early vessel (coll. SK).

Notes on DONG FANG HONG 11 types

DFH 11-type length 112.8 (105.0 b.p.)x19.6x16.4x3.6 meters. 5050/5450 tons gross, 3700 displ., 450 tons cargo. 1180-1252 passengers, 2 main power plant diesel engines stand-alone 1655 kilowatts, 2xfour leaf aft propellers, 2.45 m. diameter, speed 16.4k

DFH 11-26: 12V300-50B type 1470 kilowatts diesel engine 2, speed 15.66.

DFH 27-30 and presumably also JIANG HAN 19-20: 6E300ZC-1 fuel-efficient diesel engines. External recognition feature: forward sloping stanchions are of solid construction.

DFH 424 r. JIANG SHEN 115, DFH 425 r. JIANG SHEN 116, JIANG SHEN 117, JIANG SHEN 118: comparable to above, but propulsion power reduced by about 103 kilowatts, fuel consumption approximately 37.2 grams / kWh, and able to burn low-grade fuel. Simpler external appearance.
